September in Philly!

Even though the summer months passed by in a blur, there's something magical about September.

It feels like a time of renewal – back to school, brilliant colorful leaves, football season, and, of course, an exquisite array of fruit and vegetables.

Just as some local seasonal produce dwindles, there's always something new the earth offers up.

Now is the time to experience the best in apples, beets, broccoli, brussels sprouts, cauliflower, concord grapes, cranberries, parsnips, pumpkins, winter squash, and so much more. And while we love to carry our local seasonal favorites, remember that the Philadelphia Wholesale Produce Market imports from around the world. After all, avocados, bananas, and strawberries are always in demand and our merchants make sure that “glocal” (global and local) is an option to our customers twelve months a year. And that’s about as reassuring as the changing seasons.

Visit us at pwpm.net or, better yet, feast your senses in our fully-enclosed and fully-refrigerated facility at 6700 Essington Avenue and witness first-hand that “fresh is our life’s work.”

What is Labor Day and Why Do We Celebrate It?

Labor Day, the first Monday in September, was created by the labor movement and is dedicated to the social and economic achievement of American workers. We salute all the hard working men and women at the Philadelphia Wholesale Produce Market and thank them for all their contributions to the strength, prosperity, and well-being of our nation.
